Existing Alarm Systems

Alarm systems need regular servicing, and it may be a condition of your insurance. Insurance companies usually ask for the maintenance to be done by an approved installer. As a member of the PSA and the NSAI our inspections will be acceptable to your insurer.

If you already have an alarm system and are looking for a maintainer, repair fixed or an upgrade we can help you.

- We can repair any existing intruder alarm system as long as it is of reasonable quality, or give advice on upgrading to the current standards.
- Upon all calls we will offer free advice on the protection and coverage of your current alarm system.
- Maintenance contracts available
- Did you get new a new extension, windows/blinds recently and need the windows reconnected?
- Want to get your existing alarm system monitored by our 24hour monitoring centre?
- Additional Panic buttons required
- Remote Fobes required

Any intruder alarm system we upgrade will be issued with a NSAI certificate for your insurance purposes.

Wired or Wireless Intruder Alarm Systems

If you are concerned about the detrimental effect a hard-wired security alarm could have on the aesthetics of your property then our wireless burglar alarm could provide the ideal solution. It also allows for additional alarms to be added to out-buildings such as garages and sheds.

For those looking for a wireless alarm system, our wireless range provides a number of advantages, including a wireless portable panic button and wireless external self actuating siren.

We can supply shock sensors, movement detectors and even acoustic detectors to provide a complete security package. We can also implement an individual key fob system to improve the level of access control you have over your property.

For clients who have existing systems that need to be taken over, we can also provide a hybrid solution of wired and wireless equipment.

All of our security alarm systems can be designed with your specific requirements in mind and tailored for your budget. You can always add to your system at a later date.
